

James E. Dean

August 2, 1967 - July 24, 2015

Dean, James Edward, 47, of Wildwood, Missouri, born August 2, 1967 passed away July 24, 2015 of natural causes. Jim was fortunate enough to be enjoying time with his family and relatives while on vacation at Lake of the Ozarks. From a very young age Jim loved to be outdoors and learned to love hunting with his grandpa Harold Rector. Hunting and fishing became a passion that he enjoyed sharing with his family and friends. He shared this passion with his daughters from a young age and was proud to show their first accomplishments in the art of hunting and fishing. He was always up for a challenge and would never back down which was a blessing if he was on your side and your worst nightmare if he wasn't.

Jim was a graduate of Hazelwood West High School and the University of Missouri Columbia earning a BSBA in Finance and Banking in 1990. After a couple of years working in the mortgage industry, Jim decided he could do it better. He along with his business partner Angie Stevenson established Cornerstone Mortgage. From their humble beginnings of faxing applications from his 1 bed-room condo, they grew Cornerstone to be the fastest growing mortgage banker in St. Louis, earning numerous awards and accolades. He was intensely focused on bringing the best people together and built a world class organization intensely focused on the customer.

Jim met his wife Kirstie in 2000 and over the next 15 years they built an incredible life and a beautiful family. Jim had two young daughters Madeline age 9 and Savannah age 5, along with his wife, Kirstie, they were the true loves of his life. He continually strove to be the best father he could be by teaching them to appreciate things, to know right from wrong and not take anything for granted. He loved them deeply and made sure he was there for all their events. He also volunteered as coach for their soccer and softball teams. He valued his family above all else. He became a loving and cherished brother and son to his wife's family and many friends felt this deep connection to him as well. He was our champion, friend, strength, and our rock. Ours hearts will be forever saddened for our immense loss.

Jim is survived by his wife Kirstie Dean, daughters Madeline and Savannah, parents Cecil and Judy Dean of Perry, MO, brother Robert Dean (Tracey) of Southlake, TX, sisters Maria (Kirk) Zulch of Belton, MO and Christine Dean of Lake Dallas, TX as well as numerous nieces, nephews, uncles and aunts. He is preceded in death by his brother Richard Dean, his grandparents Harold and Ruth Rector and Leonard and Beatrice Schwab.

Services: Funeral services Thurs. July 30, 9:15am at BUCHHOLZ MORTUARY WEST, 2211 Clarkson Road, (@ Wilson Road) Chesterfield, MO to Abbey of Saint Mary and Saint Louis, 500 S. Mason Rd., Creve Coeur, MO for a 10am Mass. Online guestbook www.buchholzmortuary.com.

“ After more than 25 years in the mortgage business, I can truly say that Jim was one of the best. He was direct, but kind. Always positive even when things weren't going his way. Fun loving and hard working at the same time. You will be missed by all whose lives you touched. Rest in Peace Blue Eyes.

To the core, you were courageous and adventurous, spirited and colorful, giving of yourself and innately capable of lifting the spirits of those around you. You lived a remarkable life. You worked hard, you played hard, you loved with all your might, you made people's dreams come true. While nobody can say that you didn't enjoy a wealth of experiences in your time on this earth, many are the people who mourn your passing on this day and who agree that you were taken from us much too soon.

You were one of a kind, Jim. You made the world a better place for being in it and you will be sorely missed.

Carry on, Stud.

“ Jimmy Dean. Word of your passing from this world is so difficult for me to absorb. From my earliest days you have represented the epitome of spirit and strength, and this just seems impossible. You were my cousin, but you were also the closest thing I ever had to a big brother.

On holidays, I always looked so forward to our family visits, and you were one of the biggest reasons. You taught me how to tell a dirty joke and started me off with an impressive repertoire from a young age. The stories you told of your antics were the legends of my childhood and I soaked them up like a sponge, embellishments and all. I couldn't wait to come over and have my mettle tested by your latest arsenal of submission holds, wrestling moves, roughhousing, minor torture and pranks. You taught me about "Indian" burns, "Texas" armwrestling, "Navy" sit-ups, purple nurples, swirlies, snuggies and so much more. I would often leave on Thanksgiving Eve battered and bruised, but I considered it a small price to pay for your company. I think these clinics in "character building" were exactly what I needed as a youth to keep from coming up a little too soft. Maybe you sensed the same. In any event, I am strangely and profoundly grateful for the experiences. In recent years we've joked that our slight age difference would eventually tip the scales, and that before long I would be coming after you for a win. I guess that is not meant to be. You retire undefeated and will remain forever one of the toughest people I have ever known.

As older kids and later as young men attending college at Mizzou, your dedication to family became increasingly apparent. Despite being younger, I was always made to feel welcome wherever you were and regardless of the company you were keeping. Despite the social pressures of youth, I was kin. And if I was kin then I was always good enough for under your wing. You propped us all up and made us feel a part of something special in one another's company, despite our humble origins. Through the years distances became greater and our visits less frequent, but I have never stopped feeling like you had my back. I hope I will remain, as I have always known myself to be, under your protection.

Certainly our politics had their points of juxtaposition, but I will sorely miss your off-color jokes, rant-inspiring emails and the lively debates that often followed. I don't think I ever won one of those either... As cantankerous as it could get, I think the jousting was mutually beneficial, tempered with a loving spirit and filling a void left after we couldn't debate with Grandpa until blue in the face anymore.

You were not born into great privilege. Some might say you had an uphill fight. But once you applied your intelligence and determination to task, nothing could stop you from achieving greatness. You combined teamwork and business savvy to become one of the top professionals in your field, and you have earned my awe and admiration in the process. You have always been generous with your time and your consult when I called on you for advice, and you have left me with valuable knowledge and a priceless example that I will benefit from all of my days.

Your circumstance in recent years is vastly improved from those we grew up under, but what might be most impressive about your career is that you have been able to accomplish so much without letting ambition eclipse your commitment to family. You have continued to be a perfect host and an integral part of the fiber that holds us together. Your pride in Madeline and Savannah is easily apparent and very much deserved, and I share in that pride with you. I so looked forward to watching together as our girls grow up, and sharing in the experience of growing old together as our family's next generation takes shape. Please know that I will be keeping tabs on your girls and if there is anything in my modest means I can do or provide for them, I always will.

“ Dear Mr. James Edward Dean Family,

My wife Susan and I first met Jim and Kirstie at a dinner in 2002..maybe 2003. I credit Jim with "indirectly" showing us a beautiful place called Christmas Valley, where they lived and he sometimes bow hunted; and we decided to move there four years later. Little did I know then that we would be neighbors in Christmas Valley when we had that dinner.

Really in an indirect sort of way, Jim opened the door for me to get back into bow hunting because he showed me a place where I could go. Often we would text back and forth about mature, trophy bucks we would see around here, although we both now hunted on our own farms. There is one giant that we both would see on occasion and from here on out that buck's name is JimJim.

Jim was a great neighbor. He loved his wife and family. He worked hard. He was a man who knew what he wanted and how to do things. Just like his camo pic here, I cannot really see his face without seeing it smiling. His "can-do" attitude helped bring all of the neighbors together here and improve our private road. This was not an easy task. After he and another neighbor were successful at pulling that off, I joked about Jim running for Mayor. Actually, it was not a joke. He was the type of man who could do anything that he decided to do.

I am reminded how precious life is and how special it is by his sudden and unexpected passing. It makes me reflect on my own life and how every single moment of each day must be treated like it is the last. I know Jim lived that way because he made the most of everything. And therefore, he lived a full life, although cut short in our eyes.

Our hearts, prayers, thoughts and sympathies are with you all, especially Kirstie and the girls. I know you built some loving memories of your husband and father and you can carry his legacy and his heritage to the next generation.

Love,

“ I think every single Delt brother at Mizzou looked up to Jim. My first memory of him is how self-confident he was... not cocky, just confident. He was always so motivational to be around. He actually helped me get my first job. He also did my mortgage and even when I did the math wrong and repeated the quote, he corrected me and said he quoted lower. He was an honest and giving person. Like everyone, I will miss him so much. I regret not seeing him more and contacting him to hang out more.

“ I remember the first time I held you, you took one look into my eyes and let out a huge wail. I should have know then that you would never settle in life. And you never did, you took the things that were important and threw away the things that were not. I know that there were difficult times, but even those were a lesson. You chose to have a good life by having the right attitude and taking the right steps to ensure that your dreams came true. You made the effort to enjoy life to the fullest, to enjoy the love of your friends and family and to be the best that you could be. They say it is the journey that matters in the end, and while your journey was short, it was the one that you imagined. You were the one who decided where to go, I am so proud that you were my nephew!!!

Proud of the man you became, the loving husband , devoted father to two beautiful little girls, caring brother and much loved son.
